Its also a pain because the template stuff and the url stuff and the blog related stuff got too convoluted. I was telling people that when I could only post two times a week I was just going to shut down the blog altogether. Then blogger offered this cool new "Blog" thingy which is all integrated into the main window so I can just open the new window and click. To start a blog I guess I should have a new tab there as well. So now you can follow this blog for updates on the new projects. 2 Comments: And who knew that writing to a web page was so much fun? I'm getting around to it today after getting caught up with other "stuff" I think. Just what I need, more "stuff" to do, more "stuff" to think about. Sounds like your "stuff" is going to be pretty interesting once it's all been done.Helps me to maintain my neutral breathing while working with my baby. A neutral breathing is essential for proper positioning of your baby during the prenatal or postnatal period. If you are practicing a CR style pregnancy yoga, you will have your baby lie on the mat next to your belly. If you do not have that particular position, there are still benefits from maintaining a good neutral breathing while working out
