University of Akron President John Huppenthal declined to comment on the status of University of Akron police Officer Michael Amato's job Monday. Huppenthal said the police chief can choose who to hire and fire. Huppenthal said no letter of recommendation was sent to the University of Akron Police Department. The chief is responsible for filing a police officer's evaluation with the Civil Service Commission. The commission decides whether the officer should be terminated. The only thing Huppenthal could say about Amato was that the University of Akron Police Department is strong and an integral part of the University community. If he did have comments, they would have been made Monday at the University of Akron, Huppenthal said. The matter was before the Civil Service Commission in December when Amato filed a grievance. Amato, who was an officer for nine years, alleged he was discriminated against on the basis of his race. Huppenthal declined to comment on the status of the officer's employment or on allegations made in the Dec. 22 letter filed by the University of Akron Police Department. The civil service commission ruled in February that Amato's employment should be terminated. Huppenthal said he would not comment further on the matter or any decision made by the commission. On Feb. 14, Amato filed a lawsuit in Summit County Common Pleas Court. In the lawsuit, Amato alleges he was discriminated against on the basis of his race and that he was the victim of retaliation. The lawsuit seeks back pay and legal costs. In the lawsuit, Amato alleges his supervisors were involved in a conspiracy to eliminate him and his colleagues because they were a minority group. Amato said the conspiracy began when he was hired as a patrol officer in July 2002. Amato
