MicroRNAs (miRNAs) play an important role in various biological processes through their specific regulation of gene expression. Emerging evidence suggests that microRNA-452 (miR-452) is involved in the regulation of murine development. In this study, we found that the level of miR-452 was significantly decreased in both Dicer-deficient murine embryos and embryonic stem cells (ESCs). The phenotype of the Dicer-deficient embryos developed into the trophoblast (TE) lineage was rescued by the reintroduction of miR-452. The inhibition of miR-452 expression in the ESCs led to an increase in the amount of Oct4. Furthermore, we identified that miR-452 could down-regulate the expression of Forkhead box protein O1 (FoxO1) in both the Dicer-deficient embryos and ESCs by direct targeting its 3'-untranslated region (3'-UTR) and in vivo by luciferase reporter assays. Therefore, our findings provide the first in vivo evidence that miR-452 plays a critical role in murine development by targeting FoxO1.Q: Hide DOM element after fadeIn I'm trying to hide an input after it is fadedIn.
