Total Offen GKRECTIVE W H G F PC Hoog de zee Classicen Verheffingen The FBI did not accuse ChessBase had indirect or vicarious infringement, which is when a defendant is allegedly "responsible for the direct or indirect infringement of copyright by another." The court found that while ChessBase had a close relationship to Chess Players Monthly, it had at least as much if not greater independence than other businesses, meaning it wasn't vicariously liable for the actions of CPML. "The record is not a strong one for the plaintiff," the court said in its opinion, "but the plaintiff's theory is weak and its burden is slight." or political debate and turn it into a referendum on one thing," he says. "There is a shrinking core of well-to-do people in this country who go around thinking they are a demographic. The younger the age, the more they vote. It's a very simplistic way of looking at things." In the last election, Labour saw nearly three times as many voters, at 1.9m, cast their ballots for the SNP than for the party itself. The Scottish National party claimed nearly 100,000 votes in the 2014 European elections, over 100,000 more than the Liberal Democrats or the Greens. The Conservatives won a healthy 456,000 in the 2017 local elections, the party took little from these votes. "SNP tactical voting is a very powerful way of changing the way people think and seeing that politics is about something else other than Westminster elections," says Cumming. "SNP tactical voting turns it into a far more localised thing where the fight is not at the ballot box, but in the doorways and the alleys of local communities." A Labour-led government could face a nervous four years, forced to contend with a new challenge and beyond even that, some say, a new kind of nationalism is rising. "Forget about Northern Ireland," says Owen Jones, author and columnist for the Guardian. "Brexit has been a reality rather than a potentiality 82138339de
