The need to apply osteoporosis (OP) prevention programmes seems important. To identify the current prevalence of OP diagnosis and treatments in French primary care patients and identify the impact of GP characteristics on the diagnosis process.

The study includes a cross-sectional retrospective survey in 2012 of GP practices from the ConsultorieGénérale medical database. Two GPs were selected randomly from each practice. The following data were collected: patient characteristics, diagnosis of OP, diagnosis of osteoporosis, T-score, treatment, GP characteristics and activity. Multilevel logistic regression was used to assess the effect of GP characteristics on diagnosis and treatment of OP. Data were collected from 2,457 patients. The prevalence of OP diagnosis was 6.3% (95%CI: 2.6-10.1) and was significantly lower in men (P

Windows Windows 10 LTSB Update 2019.Q: How can I execute my JavaFX application without showing the FileChooser? Is there a way to execute my JavaFX application and have it just pop up without the user being asked for file path? From my research, it appears the FileChooser that comes up when opening a file is the only way for users to work with the file, so I'm curious if it is possible to jump straight to the main screen of the JavaFX application without the user seeing the FileChooser? A: There's no way to do that on the user's machine. You can't really "hide" the file chooser, because the file chooser is in turn part of the JavaFX runtime environment, so it has to be visible. This might be an interesting discussion though: I'm not sure if this is something that you would want to do. Since it was my last day in the office before heading home, I had my attention focused on one speaker, Stephen Hawking, the theoretician who advanced the idea that black holes are dark energy and dark matter. Hawking has been treated for what would be considered a fatal disease of the brain for the past 20 years, but because of brilliant and focused work, he has kept some cognitive capability for us to see. But he did not sit at the lectern to talk to the world. Instead, he was microphone-equipped and looking at the screen as he spoke. I was surprised by the notion that he was traveling to space to see if he could prove his theory that "black holes are not really black, but the center of the universe is transparent." I guess Stephen has people to do things for him who think they know better than he what he should do. I did not get to ask Stephen anything. I asked Elon Musk, the CEO of SpaceX. I had, as the
