Counter-Strike 1.6 Zombie Escape Ip Download Fulll Minecraft 1.8.Switched-mode power supplies (SMPS) are commonly used in a variety of electronic applications to provide, for example, a clean DC supply. Such power supplies are often used in digital electronic circuits that require a regulated DC supply for reliable operation. A conventional SMPS comprises a switching circuit that generates a square wave having a high frequency, for example, 10-20 kHz, and using pulse width modulation (PWM), according to a signal that controls the switching circuit. The high frequency square wave is coupled to a primary winding of a transformer. The secondary winding of the transformer is coupled to a power supply bus, which supplies power to one or more loads. The switching circuit may be controlled by a controller, which also receives signals from various sensing circuits associated with the load. Because the switching circuit is not synchronized to the load, the switching circuit generates harmonics that are coupled to the power supply bus. In some operating modes, the switching circuit may create an audible noise. The noise is often referred to as a “switching hum”. Additionally, switching circuits coupled to the same power bus often create a noise referred to as a “switching crosstalk”.

This noise tends to

Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method of manufacturing a sintered body with high dimensional precision by using a laser heating technique and, more specifically, to a method of forming a sintered body including a phase having a high hardness with high dimensional precision by using a laser heating technique. 2. Description of the Related Art A titanium alloy is used as an article base material of aircraft, space apparatuses, and the like in view of the characteristic such as lightness, strength, and a corrosion resistance.

Particularly, a high-strength titanium alloy and a titanium alloy having low thermal expansion and high hardness are used in many cases. In the case where these materials are used as a structural material, the material has to be formed in a predetermined shape by sintering. Therefore, there are following processes: 1) the material is formed to a predetermined shape; 2) the formed material is sintered at a predetermined temperature to be formed to a predetermined shape; and 3) the formed material is machined to be finished into a predetermined shape. These processes are often repeated. In the above-mentioned sintering processes, a sintering technique using a heating furnace and a heating technique using a halogen lamp have been widely used.

However, since, in the former, the heating capacity is low and the material cannot be heated to a predetermined temperature in a short time, and since, in the latter, the temperature is determined by a time change and a material is heated even at a high temperature, both techniques are improper for high-speed processing. In recent years, there are disclosed a s
