This is the first time a football game has ever used the combination of player motion capture and artificial intelligence (AI), which will help each player to feel more realistic in the pitch. Player's interactions with the ball, characteristics, and understanding of the game will evolve according to the situations in the game. New players in the FIFA 22 player pool are featured as well. Gamers will find a variety of European, African and South American football stars with strong and unique player attributes. Each player has their own distinct movements and actions when performing skills and playmaking tactics. These players will show off the most creative and characteristic styles of play. Club legends such as Sir Bobby Robson, Johan Cruyff and Pele are also returning in FIFA 22. In addition to their famous attributes, players will master even more in-depth ways to play and even how they win. Those who have dedicated the time and energy to master these methods will be rewarded with improved attributes. Players can also create their own customised players, including gear, hairstyles and more. Players can develop their own individual players through genetic sequencing. Gamers can also participate in an eSports event by playing on a chosen eSport team. FIFA 22 will be released in North America on September 27th, 2018, worldwide on September 29th, 2018 for Xbox One, PS4, PC and Nintendo Switch. For more information about FIFA,
