balcony.Q: Is it possible to access the fragment of the DialogFragment? I have DialogFragment in my application. I need to create a function to save the EditText. What I have done is creating an AlertDialog and implement the onSave function. I pass the EditText through the DialogFragment and the other function onSave is in DialogFragment. But I can't access to the EditText field in onSave function. Is it possible to do so? A: Yes it's possible, But in your onSave method you need to cast your view to your FragmentLayout first. try this: FragmentLayout f = (FragmentLayout) view.findViewById(R.id.MyLayout); String input = ((EditText)f.findViewById(R.id.txtInput)).getText().toString(); The tip for saving the text to textview is given in this : saveTextToFile(TextView text, String fileName) You can reach this method
