One table has the list of brands and one table has the brands that are not available. The brands are set up by a third party company. What I need to do is return all the brands available via the third party company. I need to find the brands that are not in the table called "unavailable_brands". I'm not sure how to write the query for this. Any help would be great. Thanks A: SELECT DISTINCT brands.* FROM brands INNER JOIN unavailable_brands ON brands.brand_id = unavailable_brands.brand_id WHERE brands.brand_name!= 'Unavailable Brand' This should work fine. Q: LINQ OrderBy and ThenBy, but with different Ordering I'm struggling to find a solution for the following. I want to: Order the items in some field: If the value is the same, order in a different field. So, my first query is simply: var dealers = from i in session.Query() orderby i.DealerID select new { Dealers = i.DealerID }; This works fine. Now,
