C-reactive protein serum concentrations in patients with acute coronary syndromes without bacterial infections: incremental prognostic value over traditional risk factors. The prognostic significance of an elevated serum C-reactive protein (CRP) concentration after the onset of acute coronary syndromes without bacterial infection remains unknown. We evaluated CRP concentration in a cohort of 903 consecutive patients with acute coronary syndromes, with and without bacterial infection, admitted to a university hospital. During hospitalization, 442 (48%) patients presented with infectious complications. In-hospital and 1-year mortality were higher in patients with CRP > 10 mg/l than in patients with a CRP value ≤ 10 mg/l: 1.9 [1.4-2.5] and 2.5 [1.7-3

In the year 2015, the last known person to have their cell phone lost was student Laura Kim. Inconsolable and unable to return to college, she retreated from the world and locked herself in her bedroom, not leaving it for more than one week at a time. Six months later, Laura has mysteriously disappeared. The only clue left behind is her phone, which has reached the shore of remote Vancouver Island and has managed to make contact with a local group of scientists. As it is revealed to the player, the phone belongs to Laura and contains all of her contacts, files, photos and locations - including those of David, her boyfriend of two years, whose secrets she was seeking. Since the phone contains all this information, Laura is gone for good. But if the player can find out who David is and what he is hiding, Laura might still be alive. Could it be David himself who has kidnapped Laura in order to keep her company? Maybe he's trying to contact someone? Or maybe he's just a little lost himself.
