Master Regal Master Regal was a company founded by the Chicago-area entrepreneur Lawrence A. Stern. It was the first chain of retail food stores based on promotions and coupons. History Master Regal was founded in Chicago in 1946 by Lawrence A. Stern, who served as company president until his death in 1972. The company's stock was listed on the New York Stock Exchange for 19 years until its delisting in 1972. The fickle nature of the business led Hansen to term Stern a "foreigner" and a "scarecrow." Stern would leverage his own resources and contacts to win over the Royal Crown and Hansen. By 1953, the company had sales of $10 million. By 1956, the company grew to $29 million in sales, and by the time Stern died in 1972, Master Regal was at $100 million in sales. The flagship store was at 85 West Jackson Boulevard in Chicago, and there were 148 stores in 24 states by the time Stern retired in 1972. Decline In the 1980s, Stern's son, Lawrence L. Stern, who served as company president,
