The Evolution of FIFA Ultimate Team The FIFA Ultimate Team mode has undergone a lot of improvements in FIFA 20 and will continue to evolve in FIFA 22. The team update this year will be under the category "Silver Anniversary Edition" to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the FIFA franchise. Here are some of the major features we can expect: Silver Anniversary Edition FIFA 20 marked the introduction of Real Player Motion Technology (RPMT), which brought live, real-world player movement to the game. In partnership with DICE, FIFA 20 added a new player intelligence engine called the Motion AI, which simulates player anticipation and decision-making. FIFA 22 further evolves Real Player Motion Technology with the integration of player motion data captured on the pitch at the 2018 FIFA World Cup. "HyperMotion Technology," which uses motion capture data gathered from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match, is now included in FIFA 22. A combination of the player's acceleration, velocity, and direction of movement is used to drive AI decision-making. Real Player Motion is an AI engine that mimics the human perception of intelligence, awareness, anticipation, and decision-making. This allows game features to behave in a much more human-like way: Players would read the situation more naturally, pass less, and are more likely to anticipate and pre-process opponents. FIFA Ultimate Team FUT is an integral part of the FIFA franchise, and FUT 20 made key improvements to this mode. FUT 20 introduced the ability to spend real money on players. Overall, the majority of the game has been revised and improved, especially in the interface. We expect FIFA 22 to continue to refine and update the overall FIFA Ultimate Team experience. Here are some of the major features we can expect: FUT is a foundation of FIFA. Instead of purchasing packs or individual players, FIFA Ultimate Team now gives the player a chance to build their own team from a selection of players from FIFA's roster. These players can be selected directly via the FIFA '22 store, or can be purchased through packs that the player can create at the FIFA '22 store. Players can also be bought from the loan market, and from the transfer market that was introduced in FIFA '21. PES All-Stars Series A new PES All-Stars Series will be featured in FIFA 22. This competition will feature
