LogixPro is a simulator that is compatible with WindowsÂ ..Reduction in the number of residual stem cells in bone marrow after exposure of mice to etoposide. The effect of etoposide on bone marrow cells was examined in mice. Etoposide was injected into mice i.v. in doses of 100, 200, and 250 mg/kg body weight. The mice were examined daily for 14 days and the number of lineage-committed stem cells (HSCs, erythroblasts, and myeloblasts) in bone marrow was determined using flow cytometry. The percentages of HSCs and erythroblasts in the bone marrow of the mice treated with etoposide were significantly reduced at 6 h after drug injection and increased back to the control level at 48 h. However, the number of myeloblasts was reduced at 6 h, and 24 h later the number was recovered to the level of the control mouse. The decrease in the number of myeloblasts was much more profound in mice treated with 250 mg/kg body weight etoposide. These results suggest that etoposide induces damage to the bone marrow microenvironment and reduces the number of HSCs in bone marrow. This reduction may lead to a reduction in the number of HSCs that could subsequently be mobilized into blood and so reduce the hematopoietic reserve in the body. 0

The two world leaders met for the first time since Obama became the first black US president, and seemed to already be hitting it off as they shook hands following their photos. Queen Elizabeth's husband, Prince Philip, had his customary scowl on his face while Obama and Michelle smiled and laughed as they posed for the cameras. Throughout the meeting, both leaders appeared to be "in-the-know," according to former Republican Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich, who appeared on Fox News. "They were just having a great time," Gingrich said. "What we're seeing is this very big step for Obama, a former community organizer, to become the president of the United States, in many ways the most powerful office on the planet." Obama praised the Queen as "the best example of a woman in the world" while he and Michelle went on to thank the Britons for welcoming them to their country. "It's a great honor for us to be here. I have to say, the best part of the journey is being here in this palace and visiting with the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh," Obama said. "What you're doing is you're keeping the flame of liberty alive and helping people all around the world who share the beliefs that we do, the values that we hold. We're gonna be looking 648931e174

Field of the Invention The present invention relates generally to hitching devices and, more particularly, to an improved three-point hitch design having a quick connect and disconnect feature. 2. Description of the Related Art Hitches provide a means for transferring mechanical energy between a towing vehicle and a trailer or trailer dolly. Hitches are often characterized by the number of main lines and/or pins that connect the towing vehicle to the trailer or trailer dolly. Moreover, many trailers are configured to include two main lines. As a result, most two-point trailers are pulled by two-point (or two-line) towing vehicles. Moreover, most semi-trailers include three main lines, and are pulled by three-point (or three-line) towing vehicles. Three-point hitches are most often used on pickup trucks, due to their short wheelbase and large size. The three-point hitch is a rearward extension on the rear of the towing vehicle, often attached to a safety chain or cable. The three-point hitch allows the towing vehicle to pull a trailer by connecting the trailer to the three-point hitch. As such, the towing vehicle may often be referred to as a three-point towing vehicle or a three-point semi-trailer. In order to connect a three-point hitch with a trailer or trailer dolly, generally an adjustable three-point hitch is utilized. The towing vehicle receives mechanical energy, which is transferred to the trailer
