The game is an adventure, told from the first person perspective, with the player acting as the chief protagonist. The main goal is to find and destroy a dragon, the most dangerous enemy of the city. We haven't had too many Worms games in quite some time, so it's always a treat when we get one out. We've been enjoying the new Worms Mayhem, and it looks like we have another new Worms game coming out. Worms World Party is a new entry in the Worms franchise, one in which you play the game in the form of a worm as well. Apparently the worms were designed by a real worm (no, really) named Worm. Oh, and there are some new weapons as well. So in Worms World Party, you play as a worm looking to destroy different types of obstacles. You see the goal is to make it through all three stages of the game, but the stages are randomized each time, so it makes it just a bit trickier. And each time you start you only have a certain number of lives, so if you run out you have to start over again. And as you might expect, new weapons are added as well (previously your only choice of weapons was a fork, spoon, or stick). There are a few different types of weapons, including a mouth-watering mouth gun, a spike gun, a super powerful tube gun, and more. Each weapon has different effects such as increases to speed, size, or health. I've only played the demo so far, but everything seems to be working smoothly, and the goofy humor is just as it should be. And if you loved Worms 3D, I have no doubt you'll enjoy this new game as well. We'll be sure to keep you updated with any new info we come across. If you haven't played Worms 3D on the Wii U yet, make sure to check that out now. It's a new entry in the Worms series with some pretty sweet changes. The game features some new weapons and characters, and the graphics have also been updated and are quite nice. Of course, it's going to feature local multiplayer, online multiplayer, and all the usual stuff, and it's discounted as well. If you've been a faithful Redditor, you may have noticed our few attempts to generate a buzz with our own weekly article on pop culture. We have a few segments on Appinions, and a segment on Ghostbusters c9d1549cdd
