the categories and pages listed there. The F.B.I. released its findings, saying that the gunman, who was named as the suspect by police and later confirmed as the gunman, had aspired to be the next Martin Luther King, Jr. . The suspect, apparently determined to rid himself of any resentment for the role he played in the massacre, made a long list of preliminary deeds, including an "erratic" speech, two suicide attempts, a series of physical threats and an apparent celebration of the "sacrifice" of innocent victims. In the second suicide attempt, he slit his wrists and told hospital attendants that "he was not a monster", the F.B.I. said. He eventually was "discovered" making another attempt with a razor in the dormitory he shared with his roommate. A letter written by the man in May 2009, released by the F.B.I. on Wednesday, explained that he had gotten into the act after reading newspaper accounts of the shootings of nine black churchgoers in Charleston, S.C., by a white man in June. The deed was then triggered by news accounts of similar shootings by a black gunman in Kansas and then, just three days later, the "horrific and tragic" killings in Charleston. Indeed, the F.B.I. noted that the shooter's "entire" motive was "to avenge the victims of the shootings in Charleston, S.C." (Another motive, to the F.B.I., was a desire to "kill white people.") bench outside the restaurant and bar of The Elephant, a popular cafe and restaurant in a beautiful neighbourhood of Moscow. All around me, and many meters up in the air, construction cranes, scaffolding and cranes are building the streets above, next to and on the edges of the restaurant. I am sitting on a bench right in the middle of what will likely be replaced by a brand new glamorous high rise apartment building. Several bars and restaurants are located right at my bench, and several construction companies work right above my head. Several cranes are moving around. There are dozens of different shapes and colors, and several different sounds. I find myself thinking about the past while sitting on this bench, thinking about the past. The past, and what was (and

The past, and what was. If you would ask me what I did before I got to the café today, I would say that I studied robotics. I was studying robotics at the Moscow Institute of Physics and Technology. For my project I wanted to make a robot that could play a simplified version of Go (an ancient strategy game). Go is a game for
