so, how do you get all of the old movies, how do you get the old movies to keep playing for you, to keep showing you? and what can you do to help keep the films playing? we need to let the public know about our films, we need to let them know how many titles are available for them to rent. we need to let them know that the films are still out there and we need to let them know we care. when the filmmakers at filmlinc approached us about showing the film, we immediately jumped at the chance. everyone has heard that the public access channel is a great place to find old, rare titles that are hard to find elsewhere. we are grateful for the opportunity to be able to share films with a wider audience and to allow the general public to experience the films that are already out there waiting for them. the re-release of africa screams is another important step in the effort to ensure that these forgotten gems are available to new generations of audiences. its a film that lends itself well to new technology, and its a film that deserves to be remembered. we have been working tirelessly to bring the old films back to the public. we want to see them played on their original formats, but we also want them to be enjoyed on their new home, our tv screens. our goal is to get as many public access channels to air the films as we can, and to put as many dvds out there as we can. its all a part of the same thing; its all a part of getting the films out there where they belong. its all for the love of cinema. at filmlinc.org, youll find all of our public access films, as well as information on how to find them, where to see them, and how to support our efforts to get the films shown on public access channels around the country.

1080p 3d Sbs Film Mkv 46

there is plenty of documentary footage of the time, which is one of the reasons why i wanted to make the film. i would love to see the deck again, so i could see the cockpit, too. of course, the film has several scenes that were shot on the deck, which are perfectly well shot. but i would love to see the cockpit up close. i have also watched the video footage from the deck several times - with and without sound, in order to get a better idea of what i was doing then. that alone is one of the reasons for making a theatrical documentary. can you imagine getting a sideways shot of john belushi with a camera mounted on the bridge of a boeing 747? thats what happened. and that was supposed to be a documentarians dream. but here it is, a home movie of my brothers plane being shot sideways. pace yourself. nyaf bingo will be back in the building all weekend long. tonight at new york asian film festival (nyaff) at metrograph, teenage waste will be playing, followed by a performance by josie ho, dream home, and ken kwek at the donald b. fagan forum. tomorrow, head over to metrograph for buttermilk soup , followed by the opening night film don't speak and chronicle of a summer. then stop by the fagan forum to see lee chang-dong's burning sun tomorrow at 4pm. tomorrows new york asian film festival (nyaff) panels at metrograph begin at 5pm, with moderator josie ho moderating a panel with directors hirokazu koreeda, niki caro, da hongfei, josé ruiz, cédric klapisch, and chinonye chyong, moderated by film comment editors philip french and ava duvernay. hirokazu koreeda will follow the panel on saturday at the fagan forum at 3:30pm with a q&a in the silent mirrors: japanese masters of world cinema series. get tickets at metrograph . 5ec8ef588b
