The first new symptom found by Hahnemann is the Simillimum for a homeopathic medicine. This is the most important, and most powerful, symptom that you will learn to evaluate for a homeopathic medicine. Other medicines, or other symptoms, in the materia medica may enhance or reduce the Simillimum, but they should not change the fundamental nature of the Simillimum. There are different formulas and symbols that you can use to diagnose and treat a Simillimum. The first additional symptom presented in the Homeopathic Materia Medica is called the single remedy. Often, the single remedy presents the most important aspect of a homeopathic medicine in a single essential feature. For example, the single remedy for Belladonna can be described as being an antidote to morphine. the following is a list of the most commonly studied homeopathic medicine index cards. each of these cards contains a key mental or physical symptom. some contain a few of the characteristic physical symptoms. the more a medicine is studied, the more details you will learn about it. it is not necessary to memorize the entire materia medica. homeopathic materia medicas will be the most complete, easy to use, and the most complete listing of homeopathic materia medicas in the world. homeopaths will refer to this guide for valuable information while prescribing homeopathic remedies. it will also be an invaluable resource for students and doctors of homeopathy. homeopaths will find it a valuable source of reference and a reference and information tool that will be of great value to them and their patients.
