How can I possibly code this? And is it possible to search a list in Python for a certain element which is the sum of numbers in another list. A: To find if a number X is a sum of elements of list L, do: for i in L: if i + X in L: print(i + X) For every i in L you check if i + X is a member of L, if not, you haven't found a matching sum yet.
