after the player exits the side of the elevator shaft, the player is able to bypass the next portion of the level by jumping into the water. doing this will cause the player's passport scanner to activate, and by holding the prompt button it will float through the gap. all of the zombies' deaths can be scripted in the crossfire game engine. as such, we can make them respawn as a group of zombies on the opposite side of the map (or if they're already dead on the opposite side of the map, they will just stay there). this is particularly useful for spamming spawns, as you can just spam different peoples' death-scripted zombie spawners and cause a huge amount of mayhem. [15] the glitch causes the player to be invisible even if they have the visor on their helmet turned up. this can be fixed by putting on a low visor like a welding mask and standing next to a bright object like a window or a light bulb, but the player cannot be completely invisible. on darkwood you can find the laser-pistol and lasermuffin arsenal items, by grabbing them and in the inventory menu click the arrow button to the left of the equipment section to see it. this will give you a lot more shooting at zombies. in call of duty: black ops the game never shows when you have ran out of ammunition and an infinite amount is left in the player's weapon. to make it clear this is not the case, the player should start a new game. on the new game the player starts out with only the correct amount of ammunition. this glitch can be used by the player to keep the player invulnerable. during the game, the player stands in front of a light source and faces the light. when they shoot the light, they will not be hurt. however, it should be noted that this is only for melee kills. this glitch can be used in several ways, including to make the player immune to splash damage, and to remove all bleeding from the player.

details: while driving a car in the first race, if the car leaves the road during a slow motion, and if the car jumps out of the road, then another car will pass under the car that jumped out of the road and hit it. the car that hit the jumping car will then explode, which means the player will die. details: if the player dies, and then revives, they will still have the same amount of souls that they had when they died. the player can get more however, if they get a kill streak in before they die. details: the player can shoot a crossbow into the ground and as soon as the player runs up to the crossbow, it will teleport the player outside of the map onto a ladder. once they're on the ladder, they can go up the ladder by walking forward. they can jump off the ladder and now have infinite jumping animation. they can hide here indefinitely. details: if the player dies, and then revives, they will still have the same amount of souls that they had when they died. the player can get more however, if they get a kill often. using a rumble with a knife, pistol, or shotgun will always work but not with smgs. the rumble will immediately become active if the player was kicked. the rumble must be performed when the player is standing still and while a frag grenade is equipped. players with a weapon in the secondary (right or left) hand are not affected by rumble. the rumble does not affect the size of the explosion and does not stop the player from firing their weapon, moving, or crouching. the rumble will last for about 20 seconds, with the player's weapon re-equipped with the rumble effect. after 20 seconds, the rumble will end, and the player will receive a permanent boost of speed and have a much higher initiation rate. 5ec8ef588b
