SysInfo Detector Crack [32|64bit]

SysInfo Detector is a little helper app which gathers information from both inside and outside of your computer. It monitors CPU, network, disk, Windows, printers, video, USB, PCI and ASPI devices and much more. As the software is both small and very easy to use, this is the perfect tool to get a list of all the current programs installed on your computer, or even to list programs in the past! Additionally, the list of installed hotfixes and Windows updates is a great way to get a better idea of what's currently being worked on by Microsoft. As a regular program in your system tray, SysInfo Detector displays useful information, such as CPU, network, disk, Windows, printers, video, USB, PCI and ASPI devices, driver information and much more. No need to run a full-fledged application, or use a command prompt. Using the all-new graphically enhanced settings, you can also configure your preferences, choosing what temperatures you want to monitor and other useful stuff. - Grab a current list of all the programs installed on your computer - Instantly see information about the updates, hotfixes and Windows security patches installed on your system - Get a list of the printers, USB, PCI and ASPI devices on your computer - View and manage Windows and hardware related components - See what you have installed on your computer, with details and a preview - Monitor temperatures and fans - Install more hardware and software components with just one click - Displays drivers and autorun programs on your computer - Graphically enhanced system tray monitor - Configure the settings - See current memory, disk, network and CPU utilization - Customize how the SysInfo Detector works - Lots more! This program is freeware. However, in order to support future development and maintain a great product, we ask you to make a small donation.
