Lawmakers Must Do More to Stop Gun Violence in Michigan Last week, the Michigan House of Representatives passed a comprehensive set of gun-control bills, with bipartisan support. Unfortunately, the bills that should have passed the Senate in a more timely fashion, and that have garnered bipartisan support in the past, still languish. Before the end of the year, the Legislature will have to pass the gun bills that have passed the House. Here are the bills that I've heard lawmakers say they're working on passing the Senate. To prevent convicted felons and dangerous people from getting guns, law enforcement would issue a peace bond to anyone they believe poses a danger. The peace bond would be issued, for example, if a neighbor reports that a relative has been in a car accident and may be suicidal. This measure was offered by Rep. Michele Hoitenga (R-Milton Hills) and co-sponsored by Rep. Dennis Baxley (D-Emmet). However, Baxley withdrew his support when Hoitenga's peace bond bill was incorporated into the gun bills. Hoitenga said she was surprised to have Baxley take issue with her bill. Hoitenga's bill is important to the community, she said, and

Baxley withdrew support to punish her for getting the whole package through. Hoitenga, f988f36e3a
