This was my first REAL demo so please excuse the fact that the UI is not the prettiest thing ever! I have a lot. A new animal model for the study of hematopoiesis. Here we describe a new transgenic mouse model for the study of hematopoiesis. In this model the expression of the c-kit receptor tyrosine kinase is placed under the control of the CD11c promoter which is mainly active in cells of monocytic origin. In the CD11c-Kit mice (CD11c-Kit) the compound bone marrow contains the same cell types as the bone marrow of wild-type mice including multipotent progenitors, committed myeloid precursors and maturing myeloid cells. In CD11c-Kit mice granulocyte-macrophage colony-forming units can be propagated in vitro by the addition of G-CSF and Kit receptor ligand. Granulocyte-macrophage colony-forming units can be obtained in the spleen and blood of the CD11c-Kit mice. The CD11c-Kit mice are unresponsive to the growth factors M-CSF and GM-CSF, which are required to sustain the growth of colony-forming units. These mice will be a useful tool for the study of hematopoiesis. I am not only a doctor, but I am also a mother, grandmother and full time carer for my father who has a progeria (actually a form of juvenile onset severe lipodystrophy). My interest in progeria was aroused in my teens, when I was sent one of the first letters which offered a new therapy for progeria which was to be a gene therapy - and I couldn't understand why it was needed. My first book, which was a collaboration with my father, was The Mystery of your Child's Disease. I found that the medical profession didn't really understand the condition, nor did the public, so I set out to do my best to make this seem approachable and understandable to people not directly affected by it. As a result, I have become an authority, and I am a medical journalist too
